Conference Attended: Fertility 2019 – 3rd -5th January in Birmingham, United-kingdom

I would like to thank the Society of Reproduction and Fertility (SRF) for their financial support to attend the fertility conference from, 3rd-5th January 2019 in Birmingham, United-Kingdom which allowed me to attend this conference.

To have been selected for an oral presentation at the Fertility 2019 in the Student Prize Session represented an excellent opportunity to show my research and to discuss my data with other scientists working in similar areas of research to mine. Moreover, during the conference I received feedback from my data from other scientists in my field and exchanged ideas that some experts gave to me about the future direction of my work. This Fertility conference helped me to more critically reflect on my own research and enable me to look at it from a different perspective. Having participated in this conference has updated my knowledge and gave some insight about other's unpublished work. There were many excellent speakers at the conference who gave talks that have opened my eyes to new areas of research.

As an SRF member, this meeting gave me the opportunity to meet other members in person and expand my network of people with similar scientific interests and establish new contacts that could hopefully result in future collaborations.
